

Domestic Abuse online training for service providers

Our Domestic and Sexual Abuse work focuses on women and girls and is a partnership initiative with Solace Women's Aid (SWA), a large specialist advice and refuge charity for women and girls across London. We have delivered domestic and sexual abuse training for many years. However, as the project has evolved and grown we are now able to move our training online.

As part of the overall project the Gypsy and Traveller women leading our Women and Girls work have co-produced and featured in an amazing play now adapted to film called 'Never Going To Beat You'. As part of this training session you will be given an opportunity to view the educational film. The training that follows will use many of the scenarios seen in the film as part of the training workshop.

The training is very powerful and delivered by survivors of abuse, Gypsy and Traveller women. You will gain a unique insight, helping you to understand the barriers and safeguarding issues to be aware of when working with these communities.

This training is vital when engaging with women from the Traveller and Gypsy communities who are experiencing abuse.

Objectives:

This training will equip and enable people to develop their understanding of abuse and its impacts. It will assist in building confidence and positive relations and appropriate responses. It will enable professionals to engage and work effectively with Gypsy and Irish Traveller communities.
